

It's exciting to be a part of the SS&TP technology community! I look forward to continuing close relationships and pursuing further business opportunities with companies and organizations in the Park.

David Kistin, Manager, Technology and Economic Development, Sandia National Laboratories

COMPANY AND ORGANIZATION NEWS

New Leadership in the SS&TP Program Office

David Kistin now leads and manages Sandia's Technology and Economic Development programs, including the Sandia Science & Technology Park (SS&TP). Also, he will serve as an Associate Director for the Quantum Systems Accelerator (QSA). David started at Sandia in 2015 as the Program Leader for the Office of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy's Small Business Vouchers (SBV) pilot. More recently, he has been leading efforts for the Center for Collaboration and Commercialization (C3), including Sandia's Entrepreneur Exploration (EEx) program.

AEgis and ATA Join BlueHalo

AEgis Technologies (AEgis) and Applied Technology Associates (ATA) joined fellow industry leaders to form BlueHalo, provider of advanced engineering solutions and technology to the national security community. BlueHalo provides novel capabilities in the domains of Space Superiority and Directed Energy, Missile Defense and C4ISR, and Cyber and Intelligence. With a focus on engineering to develop, transition, and field next generation solutions, BlueHalo solves the most complex challenges of customers' critical missions. Learn more at www.bluehalo.com.

New Mexico Angels Names New President

Drew Tulchin is the new president for New Mexico Angels, a private membership organization of accredited angel investors that focuses on investing in early-stage technology companies to provide opportunities where members can obtain outstanding financial returns. He is very active with New Mexico start-ups, most notably with Meow Wolf, serving as their first CFO. Drew also helped Meow Wolf receive assistance from Sandia's New Mexico Small Business Assistance (NMSBA) Program. Visit www.nmangels.com.

SS&TP Newsletter Goes Completely Digital

Due to COVID-19, the SS&TP Program Office decided not to print the December Park Post newsletter. From now on, the monthly newsletter will only be sent out electronically. To download past newsletters, visit www.sstp.org/newsletter-archive.
